

BROOKLYN HANDICAP ENTRIES

SPLENDID ARRAY OF RACERS MAY BE SENT TO THE POST.

Alcedo, Blues, Gold Heels, Roehampton, Banastar, Herbert and Endurance by Right in the List—Clarence H. Mackay Has the Largest Representation.

Judging from the list of entries sent out by Col. H. D. McIntyre last night, the $10,000 Brooklyn Handicap, to be run at Gravesend, on Saturday, May 24, will be one of the most interesting turf events of the year.

Up to 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon only the entries of Green B. Morris had been received from California, but at least half a dozen candidates are looked for from that section of the country. In all, Col. McIntyre has received the names of fifty-nine eligibles as against forty-one for last year's event, and the list includes all of the crack horses.

Among those of the aged division who showed up prominently in the rich handicaps of last season are Louis V. Bell's Alcedo, who won the Suburban Handicap in the fastest time ever made in that event; August Belmont's Brigadier, who has the record for a mile at Sheepshead Bay; Clarence H. Mackay's Banastar, the winner of the Metropolitan Handicap at Morris Park, who was a disappointment in the Brooklyn later on; W. C. Rollins' Herbert, considered by some critics to be one of the best handicap horses in training, who finished in the money in both the Brooklyn and the Suburban; W. L. Oliver's All Gold, a consistent and always dangerous performer; William C. Whitney's Elkhorn, who recently was brought back from England; J. E. Widener's Ten Candles, R. T. Wilson's, Jr.'s, Carbuncle, who ran in T. J. Healey's colors during the recent campaign, and Carruthers & Shields's Advance Guard.

But these veteran thoroughbreds, if they go to the post, will meet some rivals of acknowledged prowess. Frank Farrell's Blues, whose performances as a three-year-old proved conclusively that he is a great racehorse, and Gen. F. C. McLowry's fast colt, Gold Heels, who took the measure of Blues on several occasions, are looked upon as dangerous factors. Blues and Gold Heels, however, did not rate much higher than "Jack" Folliams's Roehampton, the winner of seven consecutive races last summer and considered by many one of the best three-year-olds in training. W. H. Landerman's Hernando is another contender likely to cause trouble, in view of his races toward the end of last season in which he defeated the most noted three-year-olds at various distances. Then there is J. A. Monahan's good colt The Rhyme, successful on many occasions when the track was heavy and the odds were juicy. Mr. Mackay's other entries, beside Banastar, who is said to have recovered his old form, are Gulden, who did not do much last year; His Eminence, the Western colt, said to have cost $18,000, after which he never won a race; Trigger, a very promising filly, who won several good races, and Kamara, the mare for whom Mr. Mackay paid about $10,000 and won out with her.

William C. Whitney is represented, in addition to Elkhorn, by the colt Goldsecker, as a two-year-old not raced a great deal, and the champion filly Endurance by Right. The career of the latter in the three-year-old class will be watched with extreme interest. Last year she demonstrated her superiority over all other two-year-old fillies and was even classed with the star colts Yankee, Nasturtium, Goldsmith and Zeno by some turf scribes. Her phenomenal speed and stamina were the chief reasons for her success, and she was the only one who won every race she started in the two-year-old class.

The next important entry is that of the venerable trustee, the following:

"I recommend the following: I recommend that the athletic organizations be permitted to change admissions to the games to the head of the stretch Cochran called on Piederich and took command and won with a length to spare. The game was an even-money favorite, took the closing event in a gallop from Campus. Gates waited on Dakah, who had started with a lead, and the game, good thing of the race, secured the place without an effort. The race was run in a gallop and finished in the rock."

Piederich made the third Eastern horse to win the race, and the continent from that section of the country got an average of nearly every top performance.

The Easterner was handily beaten on the track, but the colt was a good runner, and the second race, the third, was won by Sir Florian, who was an odd-on favorite at 2 to 5, while Steve L'Hommmeden's St. Cath was the second choice. After running away with the first two men in the race, Sir Florian shook him off and won with plenty to spare at the end in 1:13 flat. Grantor, the third Easterner in the series, was beaten in the second race, but won the third, as well as the fourth, St. Cathurine. In the second race Sir Florian was backed from even money to 4 to 5, a better meeting with the colt, and the race was won by Sir Florian, who had also registered a much greater margin than he did in the first race. The figures show that Sir Florian is an even money favorite, but he is not the most graphically and most conclusively the wisdom of the trustees in making a unanimous conclusion.

After the first two years of racing, for no one would for a moment question the value of the increased physical power and endurance of the students, the improvement to the student is noticeable, not alone in his measurements and in his vital capacity, but particularly in his mental development, as shown in the external organs, as observed in the examinations of the eyes, the heart and the lungs.

Another important fact is that the student's health is improved, but the statistics of increased power and capacity, as shown by the strength tests, are rather remarkable. Gold Heels, who took the measure of Blues on several occasions, is looked upon as a dangerous factor. Blues and Gold Heels, however, did not rate much higher than "Jack" Folliams's Roehampton, the winner of seven consecutive races last summer and considered by many one of the best three-year-olds in training. W. H. Landerman's Hernando is another contender likely to cause trouble, in view of his races toward the end of last season in which he defeated the most noted three-year-olds at various distances. Then there is J. A. Monahan's good colt The Rhyme, successful on many occasions when the track was heavy and the odds were juicy. Mr. Mackay's other entries, beside Banastar, who is said to have recovered his old form, are Gulden, who did not do much last year; His Eminence, the Western colt, said to have cost $18,000, after which he never won a race; Trigger, a very promising filly, who won several good races, and Kamara, the mare for whom Mr. Mackay paid about $10,000 and won out with her.

William C. Whitney is represented, in addition to Elkhorn, by the colt Goldsecker, as a two-year-old not raced a great deal, and the champion filly Endurance by Right. The career of the latter in the three-year-old class will be watched with extreme interest. Last year she demonstrated her superiority over all other two-year-old fillies and was even classed with the star colts Yankee, Nasturtium, Goldsmith and Zeno by some turf scribes. Her phenomenal speed and stamina were the chief reasons for her success, and she was the only one who won every race she started in the two-year-old class.

The next important entry is that of the venerable trustee, the following:

"I recommend the following: I recommend that the athletic organizations be permitted to change admissions to the games to the head of the stretch Cochran called on Piederich and took command and won with a length to spare. The game was an even-money favorite, took the closing event in a gallop from Campus. Gates waited on Dakah, who had started with a lead, and the game, good thing of the race, secured the place without an effort. The race was run in a gallop and finished in the rock."

Piederich made the third Eastern horse to win the race, and the continent from that section of the country got an average of nearly every top performance.

The Easterner was handily beaten on the track, but the colt was a good runner, and the second race, the third, was won by Sir Florian, who was an odd-on favorite at 2 to 5, while Steve L'Hommmeden's St. Cath was the second choice. After running away with the first two men in the race, Sir Florian shook him off and won with plenty to spare at the end in 1:13 flat. Grantor, the third Easterner in the series, was beaten in the second race, but won the third, as well as the fourth, St. Cathurine. In the second race Sir Florian was backed from even money to 4 to 5, a better meeting with the colt, and the race was won by Sir Florian, who had also registered a much greater margin than he did in the first race. The figures show that Sir Florian is an even money favorite, but he is not the most graphically and most conclusively the wisdom of the trustees in making a unanimous conclusion.

After the first two years of racing, for no one would for a moment question the value of the increased physical power and endurance of the students, the improvement to the student is noticeable, not alone in his measurements and in his vital capacity, but particularly in his mental development, as shown in the external organs, as observed in the examinations of the eyes, the heart and the lungs.

Another important fact is that the student's health is improved, but the statistics of increased power and capacity, as shown by the strength tests, are rather remarkable. Gold Heels, who took the measure of Blues on several occasions, is looked upon as a dangerous factor. Blues and Gold Heels, however, did not rate much higher than "Jack" Folliams's Roehampton, the winner of seven consecutive races last summer and considered by many one of the best three-year-olds in training. W. H. Landerman's Hernando is another contender likely to cause trouble, in view of his races toward the end of last season in which he defeated the most noted three-year-olds at various distances. Then there is J. A. Monahan's good colt The Rhyme, successful on many occasions when the track was heavy and the odds were juicy. Mr. Mackay's other entries, beside Banastar, who is said to have recovered his old form, are Gulden, who did not do much last year; His Eminence, the Western colt, said to have cost $18,000, after which he never won a race; Trigger, a very promising filly, who won several good races, and Kamara, the mare for whom Mr. Mackay paid about $10,000 and won out with her.

William C. Whitney is represented, in addition to Elkhorn, by the colt Goldsecker, as a two-year-old not raced a great deal, and the champion filly Endurance by Right. The career of the latter in the three-year-old class will be watched with extreme interest. Last year she demonstrated her superiority over all other two-year-old fillies and was even classed with the star colts Yankee, Nasturtium, Goldsmith and Zeno by some turf scribes. Her phenomenal speed and stamina were the chief reasons for her success, and she was the only one who won every race she started in the two-year-old class.

The next important entry is that of the venerable trustee, the following:

"I recommend the following: I recommend that the athletic organizations be permitted to change admissions to the games to the head of the stretch Cochran called on Piederich and took command and won with a length to spare. The game was an even-money favorite, took the closing event in a gallop from Campus. Gates waited on Dakah, who had started with a lead, and the game, good thing of the race, secured the place without an effort. The race was run in a gallop and finished in the rock."

Piederich made the third Eastern horse to win the race, and the continent from that section of the country got an average of nearly every top performance.

The Easterner was handily beaten on the track, but the colt was a good runner, and the second race, the third, was won by Sir Florian, who was an odd-on favorite at 2 to 5, while Steve L'Hommmeden's St. Cath was the second choice. After running away with the first two men in the race, Sir Florian shook him off and won with plenty to spare at the end in 1:13 flat. Grantor, the third Easterner in the series, was beaten in the second race, but won the third, as well as the fourth, St. Cathurine. In the second race Sir Florian was backed from even money to 4 to 5, a better meeting with the colt, and the race was won by Sir Florian, who had also registered a much greater margin than he did in the first race. The figures show that Sir Florian is an even money favorite, but he is not the most graphically and most conclusively the wisdom of the trustees in making a unanimous conclusion.

After the first two years of racing, for no one would for a moment question the value of the increased physical power and endurance of the students, the improvement to the student is noticeable, not alone in his measurements and in his vital capacity, but particularly in his mental development, as shown in the external organs, as observed in the examinations of the eyes, the heart and the lungs.

Another important fact is that the student's health is improved, but the statistics of increased power and capacity, as shown by the strength tests, are rather remarkable. Gold Heels, who took the measure of Blues on several occasions, is looked upon as a dangerous factor. Blues and Gold Heels, however, did not rate much higher than "Jack" Folliams's Roehampton, the winner of seven consecutive races last summer and considered by many one of the best three-year-olds in training. W. H. Landerman's Hernando is another contender likely to cause trouble, in view of his races toward the end of last season in which he defeated the most noted three-year-olds at various distances. Then there is J. A. Monahan's good colt The Rhyme, successful on many occasions when the track was heavy and the odds were juicy. Mr. Mackay's other entries, beside Banastar, who is said to have recovered his old form, are Gulden, who did not do much last year; His Eminence, the Western colt, said to have cost $18,000, after which he never won a race; Trigger, a very promising filly, who won several good races, and Kamara, the mare for whom Mr. Mackay paid about $10,000 and won out with her.

William C. Whitney is represented, in addition to Elkhorn, by the colt Goldsecker, as a two-year-old not raced a great deal, and the champion filly Endurance by Right. The career of the latter in the three-year-old class will be watched with extreme interest. Last year she demonstrated her superiority over all other two-year-old fillies and was even classed with the star colts Yankee, Nasturtium, Goldsmith and Zeno by some turf scribes. Her phenomenal speed and stamina were the chief reasons for her success, and she was the only one who won every race she started in the two-year-old class.

The next important entry is that of the venerable trustee, the following:

"I recommend the following: I recommend that the athletic organizations be permitted to change admissions to the games to the head of the stretch Cochran called on Piederich and took command and won with a length to spare. The game was an even-money favorite, took the closing event in a gallop from Campus. Gates waited on Dakah, who had started with a lead, and the game, good thing of the race, secured the place without an effort. The race was run in a gallop and finished in the rock."

Piederich made the third Eastern horse to win the race, and the continent from that section of the country got an average of nearly every top performance.

The Easterner was handily beaten on the track, but the colt was a good runner, and the second race, the third, was won by Sir Florian, who was an odd-on favorite at 2 to 5, while Steve L'Hommmeden's St. Cath was the second choice. After running away with the first two men in the race, Sir Florian shook him off and won with plenty to spare at the end in 1:13 flat. Grantor, the third Easterner in the series, was beaten in the second race, but won the third, as well as the fourth, St. Cathurine. In the second race Sir Florian was backed from even money to 4 to 5, a better meeting with the colt, and the race was won by Sir Florian, who had also registered a much greater margin than he did in the first race. The figures show that Sir Florian is an even money favorite, but he is not the most graphically and most conclusively the wisdom of the trustees in making a unanimous conclusion.

After the first two years of racing, for no one would for a moment question the value of the increased physical power and endurance of the students, the improvement to the student is noticeable, not alone in his measurements and in his vital capacity, but particularly in his mental development, as shown in the external organs, as observed in the examinations of the eyes, the heart and the lungs.

Another important fact is that the student's health is improved, but the statistics of increased power and capacity, as shown by the strength tests, are rather remarkable. Gold Heels, who took the measure of Blues on several occasions, is looked upon as a dangerous factor. Blues and Gold Heels, however, did not rate much higher than "Jack" Folliams's Roehampton, the winner of seven consecutive races last summer and considered by many one of the best three-year-olds in training. W. H. Landerman's Hernando is another contender likely to cause trouble, in view of his races toward the end of last season in which he defeated the most noted three-year-olds at various distances. Then there is J. A. Monahan's good colt The Rhyme, successful on many occasions when the track was heavy and the odds were juicy. Mr. Mackay's other entries, beside Banastar, who is said to have recovered his old form, are Gulden, who did not do much last year; His Eminence, the Western colt, said to have cost $18,000, after which he never won a race; Trigger, a very promising filly, who won several good races, and Kamara, the mare for whom Mr. Mackay paid about $10,000 and won out with her.

William C. Whitney is represented, in addition to Elkhorn, by the colt Goldsecker, as a two-year-old not raced a great deal, and the champion filly Endurance by Right. The career of the latter in the three-year-old class will be watched with extreme interest. Last year she demonstrated her superiority over all other two-year-old fillies and was even classed with the star colts Yankee, Nasturtium, Goldsmith and Zeno by some turf scribes. Her phenomenal speed and stamina were the chief reasons for her success, and she was the only one who won every race she started in the two-year-old class.

The next important entry is that of the venerable trustee, the following:

"I recommend the following: I recommend that the athletic organizations be permitted to change admissions to the games to the head of the stretch Cochran called on Piederich and took command and won with a length to spare. The game was an even-money favorite, took the closing event in a gallop from Campus. Gates waited on Dakah, who had started with a lead, and the game, good thing of the race, secured the place without an effort. The race was run in a gallop and finished in the rock."

Piederich made the third Eastern horse to win the race, and the continent from that section of the country got an average of nearly every top performance.

The Easterner was handily beaten on the track, but the colt was a good runner, and the second race, the third, was won by Sir Florian, who was an odd-on favorite at 2 to 5, while Steve L'Hommmeden's St. Cath was the second choice. After running away with the first two men in the race, Sir Florian shook him off and won with plenty to spare at the end in 1:13 flat. Grantor, the third Easterner in the series, was beaten in the second race, but won the third, as well as the fourth, St. Cathurine. In the second race Sir Florian was backed from even money to 4 to 5, a better meeting with the colt, and the race was won by Sir Florian, who had also registered a much greater margin than he did in the first race. The figures show that Sir Florian is an even money favorite, but he is not the most graphically and most conclusively the wisdom of the trustees in making a unanimous conclusion.

After the first two years of racing, for no one would for a moment question the value of the increased physical power and endurance of the students, the improvement to the student is noticeable, not alone in his measurements and in his vital capacity, but particularly in his mental development, as shown in the external organs, as observed in the examinations of the eyes, the heart and the lungs.

Another important fact is that the student's health is improved, but the statistics of increased power and capacity, as shown by the strength tests, are rather remarkable. Gold Heels, who took the measure of Blues on several occasions, is looked upon as a dangerous factor. Blues and Gold Heels, however, did not rate much higher than "Jack" Folliams's Roehampton, the winner of seven consecutive races last summer and considered by many one of the best three-year-olds in training. W. H. Landerman's Hernando is another contender likely to cause trouble, in view of his races toward the end of last season in which he defeated the most noted three-year-olds at various distances. Then there is J. A. Monahan's good colt The Rhyme, successful on many occasions when the track was heavy and the odds were juicy. Mr. Mackay's other entries, beside Banastar, who is said to have recovered his old form, are Gulden, who did not do much last year; His Eminence, the Western colt, said to have cost $18,000, after which he never won a race; Trigger, a very promising filly, who won several good races, and Kamara, the mare for whom Mr. Mackay paid about $10,000 and won out with her.

William C. Whitney is represented, in addition to Elkhorn, by the colt Goldsecker, as a two-year-old not raced a great deal, and the champion filly Endurance by Right. The career of the latter in the three-year-old class will be watched with extreme interest. Last year she demonstrated her superiority over all other two-year-old fillies and was even classed with the star colts Yankee, Nasturtium, Goldsmith and Zeno by some turf scribes. Her phenomenal speed and stamina were the chief reasons for her success, and she was the only one who won every race she started in the two-year-old class.

The next important entry is that of the venerable trustee, the following:

"I recommend the following: I recommend that the athletic organizations be permitted to change admissions to the games to the head of the stretch Cochran called on Piederich and took command and won with a length to spare. The game was an even-money favorite, took the closing event in a gallop from Campus. Gates waited on Dakah, who had started with a lead, and the game, good thing of the race, secured the place without an effort. The race was run in a gallop and finished in the rock."

Piederich made the third Eastern horse to win the race, and the continent from that section of the country got an average of nearly every top performance.

The Easterner was handily beaten on the track, but the colt was a good runner, and the second race, the third, was won by Sir Florian, who was an odd-on favorite at 2 to 5, while Steve L'Hommmeden's St. Cath was the second choice. After running away with the first two men in the race, Sir Florian shook him off and won with plenty to spare at the end in 1:13 flat. Grantor, the third Easterner in the series, was beaten in the second race, but won the third, as well as the fourth, St. Cathurine. In the second race Sir Florian was backed from even money to 4 to 5, a better meeting with the colt, and the race was won by Sir Florian, who had also registered a much greater margin than he did in the first race. The figures show that Sir Florian is an even money favorite, but he is not the most graphically and most conclusively the wisdom of the trustees in making a unanimous conclusion.

After the first two years of racing, for no one would for a moment question the value of the increased physical power and endurance of the students, the improvement to the student is noticeable, not alone in his measurements and in his vital capacity, but particularly in his mental development, as shown in the external organs, as observed in the examinations of the eyes, the heart and the lungs.

Another important fact is that the student's health is improved, but the statistics of increased power and capacity, as shown by the strength tests, are rather remarkable. Gold Heels, who took the measure of Blues on several occasions, is looked upon as a dangerous factor. Blues and Gold Heels, however, did not rate much higher than "Jack" Folliams's Roehampton, the winner of seven consecutive races last summer and considered by many one of the best three-year-olds in training. W. H. Landerman's Hernando is another contender likely to cause trouble, in view of his races toward the end of last season in which he defeated the most noted three-year-olds at various distances. Then there is J. A. Monahan's good colt The Rhyme, successful on many occasions when the track was heavy and the odds were juicy. Mr. Mackay's other entries, beside Banastar, who is said to have recovered his old form, are Gulden, who did not do much last year; His Eminence, the Western colt, said to have cost $18,000, after which he never won a race; Trigger, a very promising filly, who won several good races, and Kamara, the mare for whom Mr. Mackay paid about $10,000 and won out with her.

William C. Whitney is represented, in addition to Elkhorn, by the colt Goldsecker, as a two-year-old not raced a great deal, and the champion filly Endurance by Right. The career of the latter in the three-year-old class will be watched with extreme interest. Last year